Quintessential CLE Spring day activities

Maeve

I love the rain and like to spend rainy days strolling through Cleveland's great parks, in particular, Wildwood Park in Northshore Collinwood. With paths through the woods and along the creek and lakefront, there are tons of options to take in the natural wonders without leaving city limits!

Rachel

The Rainforest at the Cleveland Metroparks Zoo: We love to take our five-year-old son on a rainy day. It feels like the tropics and we love to see the animals, especially the orangutans and otters!

Bob

Stay inside and listen to some vinyl purchased from The Vinyl Groove Records in Bedford.

Evie

I love to grab a latte at Six Shooter Coffee on Waterloo Road & visit the Rockefeller Greenhouse.

Michael

I love to head to the Cleveland Public Library's Indoor Reading Garden in the Louis Stokes Wing downtown to read a book or visit the gift shop. It's a reminder that very soon we'll be enjoying a lush and flowery spring.

Michelle

My family likes to get lost in the Cleveland Museum of Art. We are fascinated with the Armor Court and the intricacies of some of the pieces from thousands of years ago. The best part? It's free!

Becky

Cleveland Botanical Garden for the orchid show and dream of spring!

Andrew

Seeing a lot of movies, especially at the Cleveland International Film Festival.

Kim

Visiting the Westside Market and picking up items to make a great dinner!

Nicole

Edison's Pizza is my favorite rainy day spot – it always feels warm and cozy no matter the weather!

Lenora

I like to head to Burton for the Maple Syrup festivals.

Christian

Lakeshore Theatre in Euclid to see a movie and enjoy some popcorn. It is known to have one of the largest movie screens in the area.

Nick

My first stop is Loganberry Books to get a good book. It's the best bookshop in town! Then it's back to my neighborhood for an Irishtown Bend coffee and snag a comfy chair at 5 Points Coffee & Tea.

Marianne

I watch the Cleveland Indians in a spring training game.
